Sports and Leisure Management: Four Volume Set

The last 30 years has been a period of unprecedented growth for the sport and leisure sectors, to the extent that they are now considered industries in their own right. Inevitably, this growth has been met with a rising academic interest in the subject, with a body of literature that is growing larger and more complex by the year. This collection brings together the seminal studies and articles that have shaped thinking in the sport and leisure management areas, with a structure that allows a large number of issues to be synthesised, organized and logically analyzed. With an absence of leading annual publications or competing reference works, this collection will become the principal reference work in the field.
