Could You Not Watch? and other stories Kevin Clark

This book consists of 7 short stories, written from a Catholic perspective. Some are new, and some were previously published in magazines such as The Annals of Ste. Anne de Beaupre and Hereditas.

"These are imaginative, spellbinding stories that combine suspenseful plots and luminous moral vision. As the stories move naturally from the surface of ordinary life to the depths of religious sensibility, the reader encounters the shock of moral truth that lies at the heart of the matter." Dr. Mitchell Kalpakgian, author of Lost Arts of Modern Civilization

"Kevin Clark has the rare gift of being able to write well and smoothly but, more than this, he tells a good story with consummate ease. Furthermore, his stories are packed with moral punch without being obvious or preachy." Dr. Joseph Pearce, EWTN host and editor of St. Austin Review

"I really liked this book. From story to story, I was able to feast on truth after truth dressed as fiction, but grounded in the most real. Some of the stories are followed by a brief explanation of their inspiration and -- would you believe? -- literal truth is even stranger than fiction!" Collen Drippe, editor Hereditas Magazine and author of Godcountry
